COLLEGE OF EDUCATION PROGRAM RANKED 13th IN NATION

TALLAHASSEE, Fla.—The Florida State University College of Education’s Higher Education program is ranked 13th of all Higher Education Administration programs in the nation in U.S. News & World Report’s 2007 publication of America’s Best Graduate Schools.

“Recognition in such a widely known and used publication is a testament to the quality of the programs in Higher Education,” said Marcy Driscoll, dean of the College of Education. “We have outstanding faculty and high-caliber students conducting and presenting research at some of the top conferences in our field. This program, along with our others, is making great strides toward excellence.”

According to the publication, education rankings are based on expert opinion about program quality and statistical indicators that measure the quality of a school’s faculty, research, and students.

The Higher Education program offers master’s, doctoral, and specialist programs. Visit www.coe.fsu.edu/ for more information about this and other academic programs at the College of Education.
